DEDICATION

This record of the Alumni, the Students, and the School of Journalism at the University of Illinois is dedicated to CHARLES HENRY DENNIS, editor of the Chicago Daily News, a member of the class of 1881 at the University. Mr. Dennis won distinction as a student and was editor-in-chief of the Illini in 1880-1881. Following his graduation he plunged at once into newspaper work and in the course of years made his way to the highest editorial post on one of the great papers of the world. His example and his achievements are a source of pride and inspiration to the students of today. They offer him this book as an evidence of their regard and their wish to make his ideals theirs.

THE JOURNALISM COUNCIL
May 15, 1931

PREFACE

Preparation of this volume was undertaken by the Journalism Council in September, 1930. The Council, which is made up of students representing the student body of the School of Journalism, wished to bring together information bearing on the School, the Students and the Alumni in a convenient and readily accessible form. The result is the present Year Book edition of the old Illini Journalist.

The style adopted in the presentation of the material is designed to make the meaning of all references clear to the rapid reader so that there will be no necessity for seeking a key to abbreviations and the notes. Punctuation has been eliminated in the interest of economy and the conventional use of italics and small and large capital letters has been disregarded.

The material in the alumni and student sections is new and is based on information gathered since September of the present school year. In the compilation of the material and the collection of data questionnaires were sent to more than 1200 alumni and to more than 500 students. Alumni directory information from the 1929 all-university directory was available and it was used as a check on the reports in this volume. The following sources have been consulted in the preparation of the volume: The 1913, 1918 and 1929 University Alumni Directories; University Bulletins and Circulars; files of the Illio and Illini; records of the School of Journalism; reports of the Board of Trustees; Convention Year Book of Sigma Delta Chi; chapter records of the various fraternities; records of the committee on education of the Illinois Press Association; and 800 questionnaires describing individual experiences.

The editor wishes to thank Professor Lawrence W. Murphy, director of the School of Journalism and members of the Journalism Council for their cooperation, and to express to the staff appreciation for the work done on the book.

Omissions must be expected in a volume of this type, though a definite effort has been made to keep the number small. Whatever the shortcomings of the book it has proven an interesting and enlightening piece of work to the members of the staff and it is hoped that it will prove the same to the readers.

The College of Journalism Act

55th G. A.

House Bill No. 285

1927

1 Introduced by Mr. Weiss, March 15, 1927.

2 Read by title, ordered printed and referred to Committee on Appropriations.

A BILL

For an Act to establish a College of Journalism at the University of Illinois, and making an appropriation therefor.

Be it enacted by the People of the State of Illinois, represented in the General Assembly:

Section 1. The trustees of the University of Illinois are authorized and 2 directed to establish a College of Journalism at the University of Illinois.

Sec. 2. The College of Journalism shall offer such course of instruction
2 relating to journalism as will best serve to train and equip persons for service
3 in that profession.

Sec. 3. There is appropriated to the University of Illinois, for the purpose
2 of establishing such College of Journalism, the sum of thirty thousand dollars
3 ($30,000) for the biennium ending June 30, 1929.

Sec. 4. This appropriation is subject to the provisions of "An Act in re-
2 lation to State finance," approved June 10, 1919, as amended.

THE SCHOOL OF JOURNALISM

In 1927 the General Assembly passed the bill directing the Board of Trustees to establish a College of Journalism. The work was organized as a school during the summer of 1927 and in the fall of that year a two-year professional course of study and a two-year pre-journalism program were established.

During the first year 50 students undertook to study for the degree offered by the School and of this number 13 were graduated in June, 1928. At the same time there were, in addition to the students listed, several hundred enrolled in introductory and survey courses designed for general and pre-journalism students.

In the second year of the School the student body grew to 68; in the third year to 80; and in the fourth year to 110. At the same time the general and pre-journalism enrollment grew from 600 to 1,000. Of this latter number, 236 were pre-journalism freshmen and sophomores in 1930-31.

The School offers instruction in preparation for the newspaper and magazine work, trade and technical publication work, syndicate and publication service, country journalism, specialized reporting and critical writing, correspondence and feature work, newspaper advertising and business management, publicity and public relations, teaching of journalism, and small publication and house organ work.

Its students have an opportunity to elect courses in any college on the campus and receive full credit for such courses. This opens to them the benefits of advanced work in political science, law, history, economics, commerce, agriculture, music, literature, science, psychology, philosophy, fine arts, engineering, education, foreign language, and library science.

The courses now offered for journalism credit include:

General Reporting	Newspaper Advertising Copy
Sports Writing	Advertising Campaigns
Agricultural Reporting	Business Problems of the Newspaper
Advanced Reporting	Newspaper Accounting
Financial and Labor News	Agricultural Journalism
Newspaper Reference Service	Home Economics Journalism
Special and Feature Articles	Introduction to Journalism
Editorials and Editorial Page	Newspaper and the News
Critical Writing	Public Opinion
Short Story Writing	Current Political Problems
History and Practice of Printing and Publishing	Modern European Governments
History of Journalism	Teaching of Journalism
Ethics of Journalism	Supervision of School Publications
Copyreading, Headwriting, and Makeup	Contemporary Life and Thought
Press, the Courts and the Law	Special Problems of the Student
Country Newspaper Administration	Contemporary United States History
Community and Country Journalism	Contemporary Drama
Publicity Methods	Law of Torts
General Advertising	Criminal Law
Newspaper Advertising	Thesis in journalism or combining journalism and some other subject
Newspaper Layout Advertising

Alumni of the School are engaged in many forms of journalistic work. These include such widely separated spheres of action as those that fall to an aviation editor, the editor of an engineering magazine, publisher of a weekly newspaper, manager of a book publishing house, feature and fiction writer for magazines, advertising manager for a small daily, publicity writer for a university, high school publication adviser, editorial writer for a metropolitan daily, city editor of a large daily, magazine editor, advertising copy writer for an oil company, science news editor, agricultural publicity writer for the government, instructor in journalism, manager of a feature syndicate, reporter and advertising manager for department store.

The story of instruction in journalism at Illinois is not one that is confined to the years since 1927. Before the college of journalism was established courses in journalism were offered at the University. The first class was authorized in 1902 and around it a group of courses developed which had assumed the importance of a major study by 1922. The early work was a part of the department of English in the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences. The reorganization in 1927 separated the professional School from both these parent organizations. Since the beginning of courses in journalism at the University more than 1,000 students have found their way into publication service.

The Board of Trustees

Members of the Board of Trustees have taken an active interest in the School of Journalism since October 20, 1926. At that time the Board voted to establish a School. That action preceded the passage of the College of Journalism act by several months.

During the past year the members showed special interest by attending the dedication of the Editors' Hall of Fame and by indicating their hope that the proposed new building for the College of Journalism might soon be secured. Five members of the Board attended the press banquet on the evening of November 21, 1930, when the Illinois Press Association unanimously endorsed a request for a $500,000 building, a request which had been formulated by the Past Presidents' organization of the association. These members were delighted to find the press so strongly behind the work they were sponsoring.

The Board during the year now closing consisted of the following members: George A. Barr, Joliet, president; Governor Louis L. Emmerson; Francis G. Blair, state superintendent of public instruction, Springfield; Helen M. Grigsby, Pittsfield; Dr. William M. Noble, Chicago; Laura B. Evans, Taylorville; James W. Armstrong, Rock Island; Merle J. Trees, Chicago; Walter Williams, Benton; Edward E. Barrett, Chicago; Mrs. Marjorie R. Hopkins, Chicago; Walter T. Fischer, Chicago; Frank H. Simpson, Flora; Margaret Day Blake, Chicago.

The New President

Harry Woodburn Chase is completing his first year as President of the University of Illinois. That he is a friend of work in journalism is shown by the fact that the department of journalism at the University of North Carolina was developed while he was president there and by the encouragement he has given to our School of Journalism since he assumed office on the Illinois campus.

President Chase believes strongly in the freedom of the press and he has given a great measure of freedom to the student editors and reporters on the campus publications. Under his direction notable reforms in the conduct of the University as a whole have been undertaken and the general faculty and the University Senate are now engaged in redefining the work of various offices and governing bodies.

President Chase was born at Groveland, Massachusetts, on April 11, 1883. He is a graduate of Dartmouth (AB, 1904 and AM, 1908), and of Clark University (PhD 1910). The honorary degree of LL.D has been conferred on him by Lenoir college and Wake Forest college, University of Georgia, and Dartmouth. His field of study and special interest is psychology and education. In 1909 and 1910 he was director of the clinic for sub normal children at Clark University. He became professor of the philosophy of education at the University of North Carolina in 1910, later being appointed as professor of psychology, acting dean of the College of Liberal Arts, chairman of the faculty, and (in June, 1919) president of the University of North Carolina. He left the presidency in June, 1930, to become president of the University of Illinois.

The Present Journalism Faculty

The present journalism faculty consists of eight full-time teachers of journalism, four part-time teachers of journalism, and eight members of the general faculty who offer work and guidance in related fields.

The Director of the School is Professor Lawrence W. Murphy who has been at the head of the journalism faculty since 1925. Professor Murphy came to the University in 1924 as an assistant professor of journalism under Dr. Scott. Prior to that time he had been head of the department of journalism at the University of North Dakota and a practicing newspaper man. He is a graduate of the University of Wisconsin School of Journalism and has done graduate work at Wisconsin, North Dakota, and Illinois. He is the author of several books on journalism and was for seven years editor of the Journalism Quarterly. During the present year he is serving as president of the American Association of Teachers of Journalism.

Professor Josef F. Wright, director of publicity and director of the University radio station offers one course in journalism, publicity methods. He is a graduate of the University and has had wide experience as a newspaper reporter, editor, advertising manager, and business manager. He has been head of the publicity service of the University since 1919.

Professor Reuel R. Barlow is a practical newspaper man who came to the University faculty from an executive position on the Minneapolis Tribune. He has served in many capacities in newspaper work and his experience covers a wide range of duties on such papers as the Wisconsin State Journal, the Marion Star, the New York Evening Post, the Minneapolis News, the Hot Springs Sentinel Record, and the La Crosse Leader Press. Professor Barlow is a graduate of the University of Wisconsin and the University of Illinois, and holds a certificate from the Sorbonne. For five years he was head of the department of journalism at the University of Minnesota.

Professor Charles Laurel Allen, specialist in country journalism, has been a member of the journalism faculty since 1926. He is a practical newspaper man with nine years experience as employee and owner, and editor in the weekly and small daily field. His books on country journalism and the history and practice of printing and publishing are widely used. Professor Allen is a graduate of the University of North Dakota and the University of Illinois. He is the owner of three successful weekly newspapers.

Professor Otho Clarke Leiter, director of the reporting laboratories, is a newspaper man of thirty years experience. He is a member of the American Society of Newspaper Editors and was for seven years managing editor and editor of the Portland Telegram. For many years he was a reporter and city editor of the Portland Oregonian under Harvey W. Scott. His experience includes that of copy comptroller and editorial writer on the New York Tribune, owner and publisher of a small city daily, publicity manager for the Hoover boom on the Pacific coast, advertising manager for a manufacturing enterprise, and special writer and correspondent. He is a graduate of Stanford University and was for a year a graduate student and graduate manager of activities there.

Victor L. Krannert, manager of the Illini Publishing company, is a lecturer on the journalism faculty. He offers a course in newspaper accounting and occasional lectures on business and advertising topics. Mr. Krannert is a graduate of the University with the class of 1919 and he has been manager of the Illini plant since that time. Under his direction it has grown from an idea to an $80,000 establishment employing a mechanical force of twenty men and printing all the student publications except the Illio.

Dr. Fredrick S. Siebert is head of the instruction in copyreading and editing problems. He is a practical newspaper man and came to the University from the Duluth Herald after experience with the Chicago City News Bureau, the Hibbing Daily News, the Eveleth Evening News, and the Chicago Herald Examiner. Dr. Siebert was for three years an instructor in journalism and director of publicity at Bradley Polytechnic Institute. He is a graduate of the University of Wisconsin and the University of Illinois and has studied at the Universities of Minnesota and Chicago. He is a specialist in law of the press and holds a doctor's degree in law.

Charles Brewer Davis, instructor in reporting, comes from a newspaper family and was "brought up" on the Port Arthur, Texas, Herald. He worked in turn on the Herald, the Port Arthur Record, the Chicago Herald, and the Danville Commercial News. He is an Illinois graduate and a former managing editor of the Illini. He joined the journalism faculty in 1921.

Dr. Burrus S. Dickinson, instructor in financial and labor news and in advanced special problem work, is a graduate of Eureka college and the University of Illinois. He holds an M.A. in English from the University and a Ph.D. in economics with special studies in the field of labor news. He was for a time a reporter and later editor of the Woodford County Journal and a writer for various magazines. He is a member of the Board of Trustees of Eureka college. He has been a member of the journalism faculty since 1927.

Frank Ellsworth Schooley, former managing editor and editor of the Illini, is now a part-time member of the journalism faculty offering one course each semester in sports writing. He devotes the rest of his time to his work as assistant to the publicity director and assistant in the operation of the radio station. He was a member of the class of 1930 in the School of Journalism.

John Russell Heitman, a graduate of the University of Missouri School of Journalism, came to the staff in 1930. Mr. Heitman is a practical newspaper man with experience in daily newspaper work and is editor and co-owner of the Rantoul Press.

Mrs. Frances Smith Jacquin, a graduate of the School of Journalism with the class of 1929, became a part-time member of the staff at the beginning of the second semester (1930-31). She was formerly a reporter for the Champaign News Gazette and for the Urbana Courier. Her schedule calls for assistance with several courses and supervision of certain work in the reading room and morgue.

The Associate Members

The associate members of the journalism faculty hold their position by invitation of the other members because of some special service that they render to the School: Dean Clark because of his familiarity with Illini problems and his experience with the early experiments and instruction in journalism while he was a member of the rhetoric department; Dean Harno because of his experience as a teacher of law of the press and because of his familiarity with publication problems as a member of the Illini Board of Control; Professor James Wilford Garner because of the close relationship between journalism and political science and politics; Professor Ernest Ludlow Bogart because of the close relationship between journalism and economics; Professor Laurence Marcellus Larson because of the close relationship between journalism and history; Professor Scovill because of his familiarity with Illini work as chairman of the Illini Board of Control and because of the part that business plays in journalism; Professor Fredric Arthur Russell, because of his experience as a teacher of advertising and because of his familiarity with publishing problems gained as publisher of a daily newspaper; and Professor Jacob Zeitlin because of his interest in prose style and his experience as a critic and reviewer of books.

Former Faculty Members

The alumni of the journalism faculty have been active in journalism and publication work since leaving the University. Frank W. Scott, founder of the professional curriculum and for more than twenty years the head of the work in journalism, left his alma mater in 1925 to become editor-in-chief of the D. C. Heath publishing company in New York city. He was later made a member of the Board of Directors of the company and moved the company offices to Boston. At the time he left the University he was head of the department of English and Director of the journalism division. He has been spoken of on many occasions as a possible choice for the office of Dean of the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences because of his fine judgment, his knowledge of the state and the university, and his ability as an executive.

Harry F. Harrington, who directed the work in journalism for five years and developed the laboratory system of instruction, left the University in 1921 to organize and direct the Medill School of Journalism at Northwestern University, founded by the Chicago Tribune in memory of one of its great editors. Dean Harrington has built up the Northwestern school to a place among the leading schools of the country and he has contributed to the development of effective methods of instruction through a half dozen texts which are widely used. The Northwestern school conducts classes on the Evanston and the Chicago campus of the University.

Associated with Dean Harrington at Northwestern is Elmo Scott Watson who left the University of Illinois staff in 1924. His work at Northwestern occupies but a fraction of his time as he is a lecturer offering one course each semester. His principal occupation is that of feature writer and editor for the Western Newspaper Union and his stories appear each week in more than a thousand newspapers. Elmo is one of the most widely known newspaper men in the country due to his reputation and activity as editor of the Publisher's Auxiliary, the service newspaper of the Western Newspaper Union.

Dix Harwood, who died in 1929, was assistant editor of the D. C. Heath company at the time of his death. He had engaged in the teaching of journalism, newspaper work, and graduate study prior to joining Dr. Scott with the D. C. Heath company. At the University he was for several years an instructor in reporting.

Ben Kartman, former editor of the Illini and later graduate manager and assistant in journalism, is now make-up editor of the Chicago Daily News. He has been engaged in Chicago journalism since leaving the University in 1925.

H. M. Hodgson, another former editor of the Illini and graduate manager and assistant in journalism, is assistant city editor of the Chicago Tribune. He has been on the Tribune since leaving the University in 1923.

Helen Pepper, from 1927 to 1930 a member of the journalism faculty, is now managing editor of Refrigeration Engineering, a technical news magazine published in New York city.

The New Journalism Building

A new building for the School of Journalism to cost $500,000 has been requested by the Illinois Press Association and a special committee of the association has begun work to help secure such a building. Tentative plans have been prepared under the direction of James M. White, supervising architect of the University, and these are being studied by members of the press committee and members of the journalism faculty.

Several locations are under consideration at the present time. A building for the School must be centrally located because the students attend classes in other colleges. Further, it should be near the University Library, near transportation facilities to various parts of the twin cities, and near the buildings in which the social sciences and commerce courses are taught. These considerations make selection of a location a problem because of the need of making buildings conform in shape and height to the general campus plan. The details of the building cannot be determined until the location has been chosen but the tentative plans call for a combination class room and laboratory building showing the following features:

A basement floor providing a printing and engraving laboratory, country journalism laboratory and faculty office, experimental laboratory, layout laboratory, research and extension office and work room, and stack room for files for newspapers and professional magazines; a first floor providing for two class rooms, an auditorium and news demonstration room to seat 300, a general office for the school, two faculty offices, and hall of fame; a second floor showing a combination morgue, reading room, reference room, and seminar surrounded by laboratories for reporting, copyreading, advanced reporting, feature writing, editorial and critical writing.

The press committee was prepared to go before the 1931 meeting of the General Assembly with its request for a building but held off introduction of a bill out of consideration for the regular budget of the University which had been made up prior to the formulation of their request. Pending the time when the new building is provided the School is housed in temporary quarters in various buildings. The offices and some of the laboratories are in University hall. Other buildings housing some of the work are: Natural History, Entomology, Commerce, Administration, Union building, Law building, Lincoln Hall, the University Library, and University Auditorium.

The Journalism Building Committee

The journalism building committee of the Illinois Press Association consists of the following members:

James E. McClure, Carlinville, past president of the association, chairman; Fred E. Sterling, lieutenant governor of Illinois and president of the Rockford dailies; M. F. Walsh, Harvard, state superintendent of registration and education and a past president of the association; W. J. Smith, Waukegan, past president of the association; John M. Sheets, Oblong, past president of the association; H. U. Bailey, Princeton, past president of the association; and C. S. Conger, Carmi, past president of the association.

The Journalism Conference

The Journalism Conference brings four conventions and more than 50 journalism speakers to the campus each year. It was established in 1923 as a means of serving the press through conference, discussion, contact, and exchange of ideas in other forms. Journalism students share in the advantages of the conferences and have an opportunity to hear notable speakers and to become acquainted with newspaper men of the state. The list of speakers during the past five conferences has included:

Oswald Garrison Villard, editor of the Nation; Fred P. Mann, merchant advertiser of Devil's Lake, North Dakota; Charles M. Meredith, past president of the National Editorial Association; Edgar T. Cutter, former chief of the Central Division of the Associated Press; Willard G. Bleyer, director of the School of Journalism of the University of Wisconsin; Lee A. White, editorial executive of the Detroit Daily News; Harry F. Harrington, director of the Medill School of Journalism, Northwestern University; Wil V. Tufford, secretary of the Inland Daily Press Association.

Charles H. Dennis, editor of the Chicago Daily News; H. Z. Mitchell, editor of the prize weekly, the Bemidji, Minnesota, Sentinel; Eric C. Hopwood, late editor of the Cleveland Plaindealer and president of the American Society of Newspaper Editors; John H. Camlin, former president of the Illinois Chamber of Commerce; Fred D. Keister, editor of the prize paper, the Ionia County, Michigan, News; Robert R. Aurner, professor of advertising of the University of Wisconsin; Henry T. Claus, editor of the Boston Transcript; former Governor Len Small of the State of Illinois; Richard J. Finnegan, editor of the Chicago Journal; Erwin Funk, former president of the National Editorial Association.

W. M. Harrison, former president of the American Society of Newspaper Editors; George R. Dale, editor of the Muncie, Indiana, Post Democrat; Boyd F. Gurley, editor of the Indianapolis Times; Carl C. Magee, editor of the Oklahoma City News; Willis J. Abbot, editor of the Christian Science Monitor; Frank W. Scott, editor-in-chief of the D. C. Heath publishing company, Boston; C. E. Honee, central division news editor of the Associated Press; Walter A. Strong, publisher of the Chicago Daily News; Tom Wallace, editor of the Louisville, Kentucky, Times, and former president of the American Society of Newspaper Editors; George F. Pierrot, editor of the American Boy.

George B. Dolliver, president of the National Editorial Association; Ole Buck, field manager of the Nebraska Press Association; Andrew R. Sherriff, chairman of the American Bar Association committee on Cooperation of the Press and the Bar; Allan Nevins, editorial writer of the New York World; John Henry Nash, artist printer of San Francisco; W. T. Steed, former editor of the London, England, Times; Merle Crowell, editor of the American Magazine; P. I. Reed, head of the department of journalism of West Virginia University; Herman Roe, former president of the National Editorial Association.

Marlen E. Pew, editor of Editor and Publisher; John H. Finley, one of the editors of the New York Times; Fred Fuller Shedd, editor of the Philadelphia Bulletin and president of the American Society of Newspaper Editors; Governor Louis L. Emmerson of the State of Illinois; Elmo Scott Watson, feature editor of the Western Newspaper Union and editor of Publisher's Auxiliary; Lieutenant Governor Fred E. Sterling of the State of Illinois, publisher of the Rockford Dailies, incorporated; Charles H. Clarke, advertising manager of Iowa Newspapers, incorporated.

Besides these there have been many local and state speakers including editors of nearby dailies and weeklies.

The High School Press

The School of Journalism directs the activities of the Illinois State High School Press association which was formed at the University in 1923. The management of the association for the past six years has been in the hands of Professor Charles Laurel Allen and a group of students selected by him to aid with the work of the conventions and association business. The organization has a general convention on the campus every fall and at that time 400 high school editors and publication managers visit the School. The association membership during 1930-31 consisted of 80 newspapers, 41 annuals, and 15 magazines. It has a monthly publication, The High School Journalist.

The Editors' Hall of Fame

At the School of Journalism is located the Editors' Hall of Fame established by the Illinois Press Association to honor the great editors and other members of the press of the state, nation, and world. Busts of eight of the men elected were unveiled at exercises held in the University Auditorium November 21, 1930. Busts of others elected are being made and will be unveiled later.

The memorials already completed are the work of distinguished sculptors. Two were made by Lorado Taft, three by Oskar J. W. Hansen, one by Viola Norman, one by Jo Davidson, and one by Albin Polasek. They are housed in the University Auditorium pending the erection of the School of Journalism building which will contain a special Hall for them. The men elected to the Hall prior to June 1, 1931 were, in order of election:

State Section

Benjamin F. Shaw, distinguished pioneer editor of the Dixon Telegraph.

National and World Sections

Benjamin Franklin, famous country weekly editor of American history.

Horace Greeley, great personal editor of the New York Tribune and the Log Cabin.

Henry J. Raymond, founder and a great editor of the New York Times.

Thadeus Delane, brilliant editor of the London Times.

Theophraste Renaudot, founder of the first notable French paper and father of modern advertising.

Members of the Hall of Fame committee of the Illinois Press Association are: L. M. Wood, Flora Journal Record, chairman; A. L. Bowen, Illinois State Journal; A. A. Raboin, Chatsworth Plaindealer; L. W. Murphy, University of Illinois; J. E. Dertinger, Bushnell Record; H. L. Williamson, National Printer Journalist and United States Publisher; W. C. Bush, Pike County Democrat; Howe Morgan, Sparta News Plaindealer.

Regulations Governing Elections and Conduct of the Hall

State Section

1. Any editor or publisher of an Illinois newspaper, who during his lifetime achieved state fame as an editor or publisher, shall be eligible to the Hall of Fame. However, he or she shall not be elected to the place of honor until one year after his or her death.
2. The conduct of elections shall be vested in a Committee of Seven, each member of which shall have one vote in the selection of names for the Hall of Fame. Vacancies on the Hall of Fame Committee shall be filled by vote of the Association on presentation of names by the regular nominating committee.
3. No limitation shall be placed on the Hall of Fame Committee in the performance of its functions. The number of men to be elected is not specified.
4. A bust is hereby chosen to represent the honored deceased. It is desirable that some uniformity be maintained in the memorials, and bronze busts conforming in a general way to those already placed in the Hall are advised. The Hall of Fame Committee shall pass on all plans for busts and shall accept or reject as it sees fit.
5. Names of editors nominated for the Hall must be filed with the secretary at least thirty days before the annual convention.

General Section

1. Editors, publishers, and other members of the press shall be eligible to the Hall of Fame on a basis similar to that described for the state section.
2. Nominations for the General Section shall be made by members of the Committee of 100 consisting of distinguished journalists in important countries of the world. Selection shall be made by the regular Hall of Fame Committee.
3. Memorials authorized shall be similar to those in the state section and subject to the same approval.
4. Elections to the General Section shall be held in 1930, 1935 and every five years thereafter.
5. Individuals may bring names to the attention of the Committee of 100 or the Hall of Fame Committee at any time. Letters of recommendation should contain a sketch of the life, accomplishments, and connections with the press and public life.

REVIEW OF THE YEAR

High Lights

The School year started off in lively fashion with Jack Adams and Vic Sholis at the head of the Illini staff. Phil Redecker and John Van Sickle joined them in the work of the thirty-six-page freshman edition and the other early papers that appeared before registration. Long before the student body generally began its trek back to the campus the old Illini staff was hard at work and the Illini plant was running day and night shifts to set the copy and handle the advertising.

Registration days brought an increase of 20 percent in the size of the journalism student body, an increase made the more significant by the fact that the business depression was having its effect on the professional schools in all parts of the country. No new faces appeared in the faculty lineup at the opening of the class periods, but the old timers were all in action: Murphy, Leiter, Heitman, Barlow, Wright, Krannert, Davis, Siebert, Schooley, Allen, and Dickinson.

The Illinois chapter of Sigma Delta Chi, professional fraternity for men in journalism, opened its program by winning first place among the forty chapters of the fraternity in the chapter efficiency contest. By taking this prize it established its right to a high place in the regard of the national organization for the event was closely contested by several chapters with excellent records. Jack McFarland, president, and Vic Sholis, secretary, were the chapter delegates at the convention, which was held in Columbus, Ohio, November 17-19.

The first event of importance on the Illinois campus was the dedication of the Editor's Hall of Fame and the presentation of eight busts to the University of Illinois through the Illinois Press Association. The dedication was held in the University Auditorium on November 21 and was attended by a notable list of guests and an audience of 2,000 persons. Dr. John H. Finley, one of the editors of the New York Times, former president of Knox college, and commissioner of education for the state of New York, was the speaker of the day and he gave a splendid address on the, "Historians of the Present Tense."

Governor Louis L. Emmerson, J. E. Dertinger, president of the Illinois Press Association, Charles F. Eichenauer, editor of the Quincy Herald Whig, and Dean Kendric C. Babcock, provost of the University, gave short addresses. The arrangements were in the hands of Walter A. Strong, publisher of the Chicago Daily News, who served as toastmaster at the press banquet in the evening.

Fred Fuller Shedd, president of the American Society of Newspaper Editors and editor of the Philadelphia Bulletin, was the principal speaker at the press banquet. Others were Governor Emmerson, George B. Dolliver, president of the National Editorial Association, and H. C. Libby, former mayor of Waterville, Maine, who made the trip from that city to the dedication to represent Colby college, the alma mater of Elijah Parrish Lovejoy, one of the men honored during the dedication.

A declaration from the Illinois Press Association that it would seek a $500,000 building for the School of Journalism was one of the surprise features of the gathering. This declaration came at the banquet and was presented in the form of a resolution which was given the unanimous approval of the members. A committee was named, preliminary plans were made and conferences held in preparation for more definite action.

Student journalists had a busy time the week-end of the dedication. More than fifty notable speakers appeared before various gatherings of editors and executives at that time. The following organizations were in session: Illinois Press Association,

Illinois Teachers of Journalism, and the Illinois State High School Press Association. The out-of-state speakers included, besides Dr. Finley, Mr. Shedd, Mr. Dolliver, and Mr. Libby the following men:

Marlen E. Pew, editor of Editor and Publisher, New York city; Wil V. Tufford, secretary of the Inland Daily Press Association, Clinton, Iowa; Bruce R. McCoy, business manager of the Wisconsin Press association, Madison, Wisconsin; Emerson R. Purcell, editor of the Custer County Chief, Broken Bow, Nebraska; C. A. Baumgart, publisher of the paper, Country Newspaper Advertising, Des Moines, Iowa; Frank W. Scott, editor-in-chief of the D. C. Heath publishing company, Boston; Charles H. Clarke, advertising manager of Iowa Newspapers, incorporated; Ole Buck, field manager of the Nebraska Press association, Lincoln, Nebraska; and George H. Gallup, head of the department of journalism of Drake University, Des Moines, Iowa.

The Journalism Council began to get its stride late in November, when the tasks incidental to the press meetings had been cared for, and the various elements in the Council program began to move ahead. Jack McFarland was made president of the Council and Mildred Allen was named editor of the Illini Journalist. Other officers were: Louise Babel, secretary; Lyle E. Malley, treasurer.

The Ax Grinders Ball, louder and funnier than ever, was held on the night of December 12 at the Urbana Lincoln hotel. Terrence McReddy, the walking delegate and the world's slickest publicity man, was on hand in the person of Jack Adams. Those who rated made the journey to the hotel in a coal car, as custom decreed, and the dinner pails clanked merrily as the assembled delegates made their way to the dance hall. Costumes were as weird and spectacular as ever and the floor was so crowded with dancers that it sagged and swayed under the load. Nobody would move over or get off, so there they were, a thousand strong with just enough room to thump their feet and call for more.

The Christmas holidays intervened just as all the students began to get down to study and the campus was deserted save for those brave souls who stayed to keep the Illini going. The holiday season brought the presidency of the American Association of Teachers of Journalism to the campus. The office was voted to Director Murphy at the convention of the teachers in Boston, December 28-30.

The period following the holidays saw a new organization raise its head among the men students. This was Phi Alpha Chi, organized as a fraternal body for pre-journalism students. It functioned during its first meetings under the guidance of senior officers but the helm was turned over to Hal Burnett, a sophomore, at the beginning of the second semester.

The end of the first semester brought with it several changes in the student body. Three seniors received degrees and a few students withdrew because of low grades or financial difficulties. The beginning of the second semester brought an increase of 300 in the class card enrollment of the school due to the fact that a large number of students registered in a survey course open to the various colleges. The professional courses remained steady showing a small gain over the enrollment during the first semester.

The National Newspaper Contest sponsored by the School was held in February under the direction of Professor Reuel R. Barlow and 140 papers were given a distinguished rating. The judging of the dailies was done by Professor Leiter and the judging of the weeklies by Dr. Dickinson.

The Matrix Table dinner and lecture, sponsored by Theta Sigma Phi, were given on the evening of March 10. The speaker and guest of honor was J. B. Priestley, author of "Good Companions" and "Angel Pavements", international best sellers, and a critic widely known in England and on the continent. Mr. Priestley lectured on "An Englishman's View of Contemporary American Fiction." He proved himself a gracious and interesting speaker and brought a fresh and invigorating point of view to his subject. The formal dinner, preceding the lecture, was attended by 200 guests and the event in the Auditorium by an audience of 1500.

Conspicuous by its absence was the Gridiron banquet, the annual faculty razz. And it came about in this fashion. The juniors wanted to hold the Gridiron and went so far as to secure the appointment of committees. Deep down in their hearts they had a feeling that the seniors would do most of the work. But the seniors thought otherwise. They reasoned that they had done the work last year when the famous "Farewell to the Old Regime" was given. They felt that they had earned the right to sit on the sidelines and watch their successors take over the work. Result, no Gridiron in 1931.

Gamma Theta Phi, an organization for junior and senior men not especially interested in publication activities, was launched late in the semester with six senior men as charter members. This group draws its membership from the men not on the Illini, etc., and it chooses its members from a body of more than 100 juniors and seniors.

Commencement time draws near and with it the time for selecting new staff heads for the various publications. Time for the Illini picnic will soon be at hand and after that it is but a short while until examinations. This year the examination period begins on June 2.

One of the last events of the year was the examination for the Certificate of Professional standing of the Illinois Press Association. It was given on May 15 and 16 to 30 seniors.

The regular spring inspection trip to Chicago newspaper offices and bureaus was cancelled because of conflicting dates. Students who have not made the trip will have an opportunity next year.

About 50 students will receive degrees from the School of Journalism this year. The June list does not include as many names as this but the summer list and the October and February lists will bring the number to about that mark.

The School of Journalism year is not completed in June. It runs through summer school, June, July, and one week in August. The greater part of the student body and faculty complete their university duties at the end of the examination period and leave about June 15 on their vacations or to engage in summer work on some paper.

The Year on the Publications

In a review of the year, proper recognition should be given to the work of the students who have carried on the work of the publications. They have performed a service to the campus that is of great value and they have given of their time, their talents, and their energies as generously as the members of any championship team in athletics. The period of training and the hours of practice extend, not through a six weeks' or three months' season but through the entire school year. For many of them, publication work means hours of work every day for four years.

When the lights are out in other buildings of the University there will still be found lights in the offices of the Illini and the publishing company plant. There may be found the reporters and editors of the Illini, the managers of the Illio, the heads of the magazines, putting in countless hours of laboratory work without thought of credit. There they achieve the successes and make the mistakes that are a part of the training of all youth whether engaged in the study of the earth or the stars. There they catch the pulse of the world, record the findings, prescribe the cure, nurse the convalescent, and discharge the patient.

The senior and junior staff members make their mark in competition as exacting and as lively as any on the campus. They earn the high place that is accorded them in the councils of their classmates and they earn it not by being glad-handers or flatterers but by hard work in the service of the public.

The staff members on the publications during the year 1930-31 showed enterprise and loyalty in their efforts to overcome the effects of the business depression and in their efforts to give the campus good news and information service. Their work has been successful in discrediting rumor, in covering local and national events of interest or importance to various groups of students and faculty, in shedding light on student problems, in reflecting student feeling, in placing the University before the public in a desirable light, and in stimulating an interest in the worth while things on the campus.

The Illini, the Illio, the Siren, the Technograph, the Agriculturist have made much of their opportunities. Their leaders are approaching the day when they will turn over the management to their successors and a new staff will begin to experiment with the reputations of a thousand news sources. Here is the gallery of editors and managers, of reporters and business assistants, for all student publications during the year:

The Illini Board of Control was organized in 1908 for the purpose of appointing editors and business managers of the Daily Illini and to determine matters of general policy. Its success brought under its jurisdiction all the student publications of the campus and it now owns all publication property. During its early years it was under the chairmanship of Dean Clark and later Frank W. Scott and the policies inaugurated by these leaders have endured. The board consists of four faculty and four student members. The 1930-31 membership was: H. T. Scovill, chairman; A. J. Harno (resigned); Robert E. Browne; O. A. Leutwiler; Fred H. Turner; R. W. Pashby; R. Baldrige; W. V. Dorris; Bernice Stephens.

ORGANIZATIONS

Journalism Council

The general body of the students is represented by the Journalism Council which consists of members from each of the journalistic fraternities and four members from the student body at large. The Council sponsors meetings, programs, and activities designed to benefit the whole student body. Its chief activity during the school year 1930-31 was the publication of the ILLINI JOURNALIST. The Council maintains standing committees on organization, speakers, publications, publicity, entertainment, and ways and means. The membership during the current year was:

Victor Adam Sholis	Sigma Delta Chi
John Albert McFarland (P.)	Sigma Delta Chi
Mildred Carolyn Allen	Theta Sigma Phi
Louise Catharine Babel (Sec'y.)	Theta Sigma Phi
John Rowley VanSickle	Kappa Tau Alpha
Frederick Jewett Worden	Kappa Tau Alpha
Lyle Elwell Malley (Treas.)	Alpha Delta Sigma
Bradford Allan Cox	Alpha Delta Sigma
Jean Macdonald	Gamma Alpha Chi

Henry C. Burnett	Phi Alpha Chi
Eleanor Lucille Barkman	Member at Large
Warren Stickney Johnson	Member at Large
Mildred Margaret Shuman	Member at Large
Donald Richey Poor (V. P.)	Member at Large

Kappa Tau Alpha

Kappa Tau Alpha, generally known as the Phi Beta Kappa of Journalism, is a national honor society limiting membership to duly elected students in the upper 10 percent of the junior-senior classes in Class A Schools of Journalism. It was founded at the University of Missouri in 1909-10 and has eighteen chapters. The active membership at Illinois this year was:

Katherine Adams	Edward I. Serlin
Amy Anderson	Dorothy June Schenck
Eleanor Lucille Barkman	John Rowley Van Sickle (P.)
Bernice Hope Cranston	James Shearer
Bertha Marie Enger	Victor Adam Sholis
Catherine Mary Haynie	Mildred Margaret Shuman
Elston D. Herron	Lillian Charlotte Swanson
Elmira O'Neal	Frederick Jewett Worden (Sec'y.-Treas.)
Frank Thomas Reagan

Sigma Delta Chi

Sigma Delta Chi, professional fraternity for men pledged to enter editorial work after graduation, was established at DePauw University in 1909. The Illinois chapter was granted in 1912 and the fraternity has been active on the campus since that time. In 1929 it placed first in national convention attendance, sending nineteen members by bus to the University of Missouri and in 1930 it placed first in the chapter efficiency contest conducted by the national fraternity. In these contests the chapter competed with forty chapters. On the Illinois campus the fraternity sponsors the Ax

Grinders' Ball, the Gridiron Banquet, and occasional lectures. The members in 1930-31 were:

John Ralph Adams (Treas.)
Joseph G. Bumgarner
James W. Gregg
Elston David Herron
Garry Haase Homann
Warren Johnson (V. P.)
Vladas Jurgelonis

Theta Sigma Phi

Theta Sigma Phi was founded at the University of Washington in 1909. It now has 30 chapters located in the leading professional schools and conferring membership on outstanding women in the junior-senior classes who are working for the bachelor's degree in journalism. At Illinois the chapter sponsors the Matrix Table Banquet and lecture and a series of professional programs for the members. The 1930-31 chapter roll listed:

Mildred Carolyn Allen (P.)
Eleanor Lucille Barkman (V. P.)
Louise Catharine Babel
Marjorie Spangler Blatt

Alpha Delta Sigma

Alpha Delta Sigma was founded at the School of Journalism of the University of Missouri in 1912 by a group of students interested in advertising. J. B. Powell, a member of the journalism faculty, was the adviser of the group. Of the twelve journalism students who made up the charter membership ten received the B.J. degree. The Illinois chapter, established in 1923, is composed of men in journalism and commerce preparing for advertising as a profession. The group sponsors the Copy Writers' Nightmare, a costume party in which the masquers dress like the characters in well known advertisements. It is active in behalf of projects for the improvement of advertising and devotes a part of its time to professional programs. The 1930-31 membership was:

Ray Ball
Bradford Cox
Vernon S. Curtiss
John B. Davies
Wallace Dorris
Larry H. Foster
Francis Gauen
Russell Horner

Gamma Alpha Chi

The Illinois chapter of Gamma Alpha Chi, professional advertising fraternity for women, was brought to the campus in 1925. The fraternity was founded by students in the School of Journalism at the University of Missouri in 1920 and the admission of the Illinois chapter to the fraternity followed immediately upon the extension of the organization to Texas and Washington. The Illinois chapter membership is open to women in commerce and journalism who have shown special ability in the study and practice of advertising. The 1930-31 membership was:

Marjorie Peacock (P.)
 Jean Macdonald (V. P.)
 Virginia Edes
 Frances Etzbach
 Marian Clark
 Margaret Bennett

Gamma Theta Phi

Gamma Theta Phi was founded by senior men in the School of Journalism of the University of Illinois during the 1930-31 school year to provide a professional group for men in journalism not especially interested in work on student publications. The organization sponsors professional meetings and projects for the improvement of the profession and the welfare of the School of Journalism. Membership is restricted to students with good grades.

Journalism Alumni

The Journalism Alumni Association is an organization of the alumni interested in the welfare of the School of Journalism. This body is now in the process of organization. It will be informal in character and will be represented by duly elected spokesmen. A committee of alumni which is now studying the problem of an alumni group plans to hold a brief business session and reunion on the morning of the 1931 homecoming football game at the University.

The Illini

Three years after the opening of the University the Illini came into existence. The school was then a modest institution with one building and a student body of 314. No women were admitted to its halls and it was still too youthful to boast of a single graduate. The first issues of the paper resembled a magazine in form and content. They appeared once a month bringing to a handful of subscribers essays on coddling moths, potato bugs, the value of an education, wanderings of a breeze, education of a mechanic, Shakespeare, and fifteen minutes in a baggage factory.

To those who bemoan the passing of the good old days one might dedicate a reprint of the contents of one of these early issues. In the January issue of 1872 the reader is told in verse of the way in which drunkards stab their daughters:

"Did you see the glare of his bloodshot eye?
Hear his awful words which his God defy?
Did you hear the blow and the daughter cry?"

In the same issues appeared articles on Christmas vacation, Bryan's nature poems, the soil, spontaneous generation, origin and culture of wheat, the Hibernian in America, the recent Spanish revolution, the services of the dog, Carlo. In those days a paper such as the Illini gave two or three lines to the Chicago fire and little if any attention to campus news.

The name Illini did not appear until 1874. Prior to that time the paper was known as the Student. The legislature appropriated $500 for the equipment of quarters for the publication in 1874 and the offices and shop were established in one of the towers of the new drill hall which was set aside for that purpose by the faculty. During the early years the paper developed first its newspaper content, and then its magazine content, until it came to reflect the policy of the editor and seemed to have no fixed policy with reference to its function. By 1900 the University enrollment had grown to 2,000 and the President recommended that the paper become a three-times-a-week publication.

The newspaper headline and story form came into the paper to stay in 1901 under the editorship of Frank W. Scott. In 1902 the paper was made a tabloid sized daily and was published five times a week. In 1912 the paper came under the jurisdiction of the new Illini Board which was created to prevent politics from having too large a part in the affairs of the student publications.

When the University Press was established the Illini began the development of supplementary equipment for use in connection with the Press. In 1917 the Board of Control purchased a flat bed press and a linotype. A year later the paper bought an intertype. It soon outgrew its quarters however and moved its own equipment out of the University Press rooms in the Administration building and took quarters in an old building on Green street.

By 1923 the Illini had acquired $30,000 worth of equipment and was distributing $3,000 yearly in salary and bonus to members of the staff. At that time the editor and business manager received $600 a year; assistant editors and managers $80 a year and a bonus; and the managing editor salary and bonus amounting to about $300.

The Illini moved into its present quarters in the Union building in 1924. It has drawn about it in the past few years the other student publications of the campus and it has expanded its plant to take care of the business and much of the printing and publishing of the other publications. The Illini plant now possesses equipment valued at $80,000.

In size the paper has grown during the past few years until it now has all the features of a community daily. Associated Press telegraph printer machines bring the news of the world into the offices and student reporters cover the news of the University and the twin cities. The paper appears six days a week of every month except August. It is an eight-column paper and the week-day editions average twelve pages. Special editions have run as high as 48 pages.

In the development of this, the greatest student publishing property in the world, and one of the great student papers of the world, the editors and managers have played an important part. Their names, and the years in which they headed the editorial and business forces of the paper, follow:

The Illio

The Illio is the outgrowth of the Sophograph which was published as a yearbook by members of the sophomore class of the University in 1882. The following year the Saturnian appeared to carry on the practice established by the sophomores and it was in the wake of the Saturnian, and later editions of the Sophograph that the infant Illio came.

The control of the year book was vested in the sophomore class for a number of years and then the book became the property of the junior class. It continued as a junior annual until 1930 when the Board of Control passed a rule making it a senior book and appointing a senior manager. In size and quality it has kept pace with the University which it represents and there is little comparison between the rich, carefully assembled, fully indexed picture-and-story record of the year and the feeble publications which marked the beginnings of the annual.

That a high value is placed upon the book is indicated by the fact that alumni cannot be induced to part with their copies and that it is very difficult to secure back numbers. It has its place on the shelves of 30,000 alumni, a memory book, a reference book, and a history. The list of distinguished students who have been its editors and managers follows:
